

This graph tracks the survey changes you have made in the Health Editor, no more than 1 sample per day (the latest in each day). Presently, it averages your health & happiness score for each month, whether you have made 30 samples or 1. As more sample data becomes available, it is the intention that this report will be modified to analyze trends & their significance. Due to the nature of the survey questions, one might expect health to be less volatile than happiness, but that is only a theory at this point. The best use of this chart, now or in the future, is if you were to consistently edit & record your survey responses over a long period of time.